The image displays a grid of 12 comic book covers, each featuring a different superhero character. The covers are arranged in a 3x4 grid. The top left cover features the word "SUPER" in large, bold letters. The bottom right cover features a small "C" logo. The covers are from the "Super Heroes" series, issue 45. The characters shown are Superman, Captain Canuck, Nelvana, and Fleirdeyls. The covers are arranged in a grid, with the top row showing Superman, Captain Canuck, and Nelvana, and the bottom row showing Fleirdeyls, Captain Canuck, and Nelvana. The covers are from the "Super Heroes" series, issue 45. The characters shown are Superman, Captain Canuck, Nelvana, and Fleirdeyls.

New England forces captured Louisbourg by siege in 1745. The British Army first bolstered, then mined its fortifications after capturing the place in 1758. Erosion has since caused many of these defense remains to collapse into the sea.

Louisbourg once filled this area. The King's Garden, Convent, Hospital and New England barracks stood prominent among the many smaller plots and residences.

The 1935-36 museum of modest Louisbourg Historic Site still stands behind the dramatic 1960 reconstruction of the King's Bastion.

With its surrounding walls, straight streets and mixed building stock, Louisbourg resembled many 17th century European cities.

Louisbourg's harbor was all important. Travelers who came to trade, live, govern and sustain usually entered by the Dufferin Gate.

In 1745, an army from the Nouvelle-Angleterre assiégée Louisbourg. L'armée britannique prit la ville en 1758. Elle renforça les fortifications, puis, à son départ, les mina. En raison de l'érosion, la plupart des vestiges des remparts se sont effondrés dans la mer.

Aujourd'hui, Louisbourg s'élève sur ces terres. Le jardin du Roy, le couvent, l'hôpital et les casernes des soldats de la Nouvelle-Angleterre dominent de modestes terrains et habitations.

Construit en 1935-1936, le musée du modeste parc historique de Louisbourg s'élève toujours derrière l'imposant bastion du Roy, reconstruit en 1960.

Avec ses fortifications, ses rues droites et ses constructions bâties en bois, Louisbourg ressemblait à beaucoup de villes européennes du XVIII^e siècle.

Le port de Louisbourg joua un rôle principal. Venus y faire commerce, vivre, gouverner ou soutenir la colonie, les voyageurs arrivaient à Louisbourg en traversant habituellement par la porte Dufferin.
